

Meet Tony Little

Suddath Workplace Solutions Director of Operations for Hospitality.

Find out how our customers benefit from Tony's hospitality project experience and expertise.

How long have you been in the hospitality moving industry?

Tony: I have been working exclusively in hospitality for about 15 years. I have been in the moving and logistics industry for 25 years, and with Suddath for 2.5 years.

What are some of the biggest advantages to working with Suddath's professional installers on a hotel or resort project?

T: Unlike moving someone's household goods or performing office relocations, hospitality work is very detailed oriented. Having professional installers is not only an advantage, but it is a necessity. All movers say they can do the work, but having installers understand the timelines and unique obstacles associated with hospitality is something we at Suddath can say we truly understand.

What is one of the most exciting hospitality projects you've worked on at Suddath?

T: I was part of the warehousing and installation for the Wilshire Grand Hotel in Los Angeles. It was a unique project because the building was the tallest west of the Mississippi. It dominates the LA skyline, and every time any of our people see it, they can take pride in the fact that they were an important piece of completing that successful project.

What advantages do clients get when they partner with Suddath on a hospitality project?

T: As with engaging professional install teams, our hospitality team works only with hospitality projects. This team understands all the nuances associated with these projects. The devil is in the detail with this type of work, and our Hospitality team loves the details.
